Cantor's Notes

Cantor Patti Turner

I belong to a blog called "Daily Emunah" by Rabbi Ashear. It is a blog about developing faith – faith that Gd. is in control. Faith that everything happens for a reason, and that with heartfelt prayer, Gd. will take care of everything, even if it is in Gd.'s own time.

For me personally, I have always believed in Gd., even when I didn't understand why things happened the way they did. In the darkest of times, I still believed in Gd. In the best of times, I still believed in Gd. I still do.

Most recently, I have been working on developing my "emunah" – expanding my belief that Gd. will take care of everything, will provide what I need, and when I need it. If something doesn't happen the way I think it should...it wasn't supposed to happen – and there's a reason, even if I don't understand it, I must believe it is Gd.'s will. As I am developing it, I am developing a greater sense of peace and calm inside.

This is an example of one of the readings:

"Everybody has challenges in life. We all have our ups and downs, but life moves on. Things pass. Problems we faced three years ago are long forgotten. We all enjoy years of serenity and endure years of difficulties. But the way we respond during the hard times determines our level of greatness. If we feel sorry for ourselves and complain, then we are squandering an opportunity. The problems will soon pass, and then we'll already be onto the next stage. We must seize the opportunities when they present themselves. When a person is struggling, he can tap into a vast resource of divine assistance. He must remain loyal to Hashem, praise Him, thank Him, and accept everything He does. This is what makes somebody great.

The Rambam lived for about 70 years. The first half of his life was filled with struggles and hardship. When he was just 13, a hostile army invaded his hometown and forced the Jews to either convert or be exiled. Together with his father and brother,

Prez's Menschen-ings

As always, there is a lot of happenings at Ner Tamid! We have a Torah Service on Saturday, July 18th as the Torah Study Group completes the reading of Bamidbar (Numbers). This will complete out eighth year of Torah Study! Please check the calendar as our Social Activity Committee has added a Bowling Night on Saturday July 11th at 7:30pm. Come on out and "Let's Go Bowling!"

We did receive a number of comments about last month's article regarding services. We appreciate the feedback that we received. As a result we have modified the Third Friday to a slightly shorter service (about 45 minutes to one hour) and then time to sit and schmooze with each other. The Fifth Friday will include a short service as well as the Social Activity. It is very important that you let us know your thoughts and feelings about any changes that are made.

The Annual Meeting of the Congregation was held on Sunday, June 28th. During the meeting we reviewed the activities of past year, heard remarks from Cantor Patti and the committee chairs, including the new Social Activity Committee. Joel reviewed our current financial status as well as presented the budget for the coming fiscal year, 2015-2016. The proposed slate of officers was presented and approved by acclamation. We welcome Mark Pierce to the Board as a Trustee. Carolyn Jobe stepped down from the board and we acknowledged her participation and contributions to the board. Carolyn has agreed to take on the role of writing thank you notes for Donations, but not as a Board member. Please see the list of Board Members on page two.

Thank you to all that attended the Friedberg's Independence Day weekend Cookout and Pool Party on Friday,

The Harlan S. Friedberg Memorial Yahrzeit Plaque is a thoughtful way to remember loved ones who have departed from us but will never be forgotten.

Memorial Plates, each with a light to be illuminated for the Yahrzeit, are available that can be inscribed with up to three lines of personal engraving which may include the departed's name, Hebrew name, if desired, and the Hebrew and Gregorian dates.

The cost of each Memorial Plate is $180.00. The ten times Chai will provide for the continued funding of additional Memorial Yahrzeit Plaques, as they become necessary, as well as the cost of the individual Memorial Plates and engraving.

If you have someone's name that you would like to have placed on the Yahrzeit Plaque, please contact Randy Friedberg or any member of the Board. Much as the Mourner's Kaddish is a spiritual reaffirmation to the goodness of life, so shall these Memorial Plates be a visual reaffirmation and tribute to the goodness of our loved one's lives.

the Rambam left and spent the next 12 years on the run. They settled in Morocco, but there, too, they endured persecution. At the age of 30, the Rambam settled in Eretz Yisrael with his family, but they were forced to leave due to the difficult conditions there. The family moved to Egypt, and six months later, the Rambam's father died. A year later, his two children died, and then his wife died. Soon thereafter, his brother, who had been supporting him, died. He was now left alone without any family or money. Unwilling to accept money for learning Torah, he used his medical knowledge to make a livelihood. Finally, at the age of 35, his life turned around. He got remarried, became the most prominent doctor in the kingdom, and became the Rabbinical leader of Egyptian Jewry. He had more children, including his son, Rabbi Avraham ben Ha'Rambam, who became a great Rabbi.

The Rambam experienced years of struggle and years of peace. The Hafetz Haim noted that the Rambam's magnum opus, his colossal work Mishneh Torah codifying all the halachot in the Talmud, was composed during the first half of the Rambam's life, amid his struggles, wandering and persecution. Specifically during the difficult years, the Rambam received great divine assistance and composed one of the great masterpieces of Torah literature. Instead of feeling sorry for himself, he gave the world one of its greatest treasures which is now found on bookshelves in homes, synagogues and yeshivot throughout the Jewish world.

We all have the ability to write our own "books," the story of our lives. We want to be able to look back and say, "Wow, what a treasure! I can't believe I did that." Let us strengthen ourselves regardless of the situation we face. We can give Hashem so much joy by overcoming our challenges by keeping the proper perspective and approaching them with the proper attitude. The problems will soon pass. In the meantime, we must rise to the challenges that come our way."

May our own "book" become our treasure and light the way for others.

Please come and join us for Torah study, every Saturday morning. We look forward to having your input in our discussions.

Weekly Parshas

Balak

Numbers 22:2 - 25:9

In the wake of the Israelite victories over several of the nations/city states on the eastern side of the Jordan River, Balak, King of Moab, is justifiably panicked about the prospect of military confrontation. Knowing he cannot defeat Israel on the battlefield, he hires Balaam, a sorcerer, to curse the Israelites.

On three successive occasions, from different sites overlooking the Israelite encampment, Balaam, at God's behest, praises and blesses the nation. Furious at this betrayal, Balak dismisses Balaam, but not before Balaam delivers a prophecy in which he foretells the defeat of Moab and others at the hands of Israel.

At the next campsite, Shittim, a large number of the Israelite men have sexual liaisons with Moabite and Midianite women and participate in the worship of Baal-Pe'or. While efforts are under way to slay the ringleaders of this group, a plague breaks out in the camp. In the midst of this chaotic situation, one Israelite man commits the brazen act of bringing a Midianite woman into his tent. Pinhas, son of Elazar, the High Priest, follows them and kills them, bringing an end to the plague in which 24,000 people died.

Pinchas

Numbers 25:10 - 30:1

As his reward for his zealotness, Pinhas is promised by God that his descendants would be in the possession of the High Priesthood for succeeding generations. God also extends to Pinhas his special covenant of peace.

In preparation for the conquest of Canaan, Moses and Elazar are commanded to take a census of the Israelites to ascertain the number of males above the age of twenty eligible for military service. This census will also provide the basis for the division of the land among the tribes based upon their population. The total is slightly more than 600,000.

Since the apportionment of the land and all future inheritances are restricted to male family members, the case of the late Tzelofchad's five daughters requires special adjudication. The matter is submitted to God by Moses, who is then informed that daughters may inherit if there are no sons.

God discloses to Moses that his end is near. Moses' immediate concern is for the welfare of the people and he asks that a successor with certain qualities be appointed. Moses is directed to present Joshua to the nation.

The sidra concludes with a comprehensive description of all public sacrifices offered daily, weekly and on holidays.

Matot

Numbers 30:2 - 32:42

Our double Torah portion begins with rules regarding the binding nature of - and the nullification of - vows, particularly those made by women.

The Israelites successfully defeat and slay the Midianites, including the five kings of the region and Balaam, the sorcerer. Nevertheless, the warriors are chastised by Moses for sparing the Midianite women with whom the Israelites had recently engaged in idolatry and promiscuity. The army is sent out again to complete the mission. The spoils of war are divided.

The tribes of Reuben and Gad and half of Menasseh possessed large herds and were desirous of settling on the conquered lands on the eastern side of the Jordan River. Permission is granted to them - provided they participate in the efforts to wrest the territory on the western side of the Jordan from the Canaanites. They agree and take a vow to this effect.

Masei

Numbers 33:1 - 36:13

The various locales in which the Israelites encamped from the time of the Exodus until their arrival at the plains of Moab are enumerated.

Following an admonition to root out idolatry in Canaan upon its conquest, the land is divided by lot under the supervision of Joshua, Elazar and the leaders of the ten tribes whose peoples will occupy the territory west of the Jordan River.

Six Cities of Refuge are established - three on each side of the Jordan. These cities are to be given to the Levites and will serve as a place of sanctuary for anyone who has committed murder accidentally. Vengeful relatives of the deceased may not pursue these individuals into the Cities of Refuge.

One additional refinement is made to the laws of inheritance in order to maintain the tribal integrity of real property; in cases where daughters inherit their fathers' property, the heiresses may not marry men from other tribes.

Devarim

Deuteronomy 1:1 - 3:22

In a series of three lengthy and final discourses that comprise the book of Deuteronomy, Moses reviews Israelite history from the time of the Exodus, repeats and expands upon many of the commandments, and admonishes the people to remain faithful to God and His Torah.

The Israelites left the area around Mount Sinai with the objective of conquering Canaan shortly thereafter. To assist Moses in his manifold duties, judges and other administrators were appointed. Following the disheartening report of ten of twelve spies sent into Canaan the people refuse to embark on the conquest. In view of this, God decrees that the generation of the Exodus (with the exception of Joshua and Caleb) will wander in the wilderness for thirty-eight years until they die out; their children will inhabit the Promised Land.

The Israelites were enjoined from attacking the Edomites (descendants of Esau), and the Moabites and Canaanites (descendants of Lot). They did, however, defeat Sihon, the Amorite king, and Og, the King of Bashan. Their lands were divided between Reuben, Gad and half the tribe of Menasseh, who settled on the eastern side of the Jordan River.

Jewish Jokes!

Too clever by half

Little 5 year old Benjy was practicing spelling on his fridge using a set of magnetic letters. Freda, his mother, had watched him put together words such as 'mum', 'dad', 'dog', 'cat' and 'car' and was very proud of her clever son.

But then Benjy shouted out, "Look what I spelled, mummy." Freda looked at the fridge and saw that he had put up the three magnetic letters, 'G' 'O' 'D'.

"Why, that's wonderful, Benjy," she said, "why don't you leave them on the fridge until daddy comes home?" "OK, mummy," he said.

But just as Freda was thinking that the Jewish school he went to was starting to have an impact, Benjy's little voice called out, "Mummy, how do you spell zilla?"

The flight home

Moishe was travelling back to New York on an El Al flight from Tel Aviv and it was time for the main meal to be served.

Would you like dinner?" an airhostess asked Moishe.

What are my choices?" he asked.

"Yes or no," she replied.

Gender Confusion

A Tel Aviv college professor of IT knew that ships are addressed as "she" and "her." But what gender, he thought, should computers be addressed? So he decided to ask his class.

He set up two groups of computer experts, one comprised of women and the other of men. Each group was asked to recommend whether computers should be referred to in the feminine or masculine gender and give 4 reasons for the choice.

The women said that computers should be referred to in the masculine gender.

- In order to get their attention, you have to turn them on.
- Although they have a lot of data, they are still clueless.
- They are supposed to help solve problems but most of the time they are the problem.

- As soon as you commit to one, you realise that had you had waited a little longer, you could have had a better model.

The men, on the other hand, said that computers should be referred to in the feminine gender.

- No one but God understands their internal logic.
- The native language they use to communicate with other computers is incomprehensible to everyone else.
- Even smallest mistakes are stored in long-term memory for later retrieval.
- As soon as you commit to one, you start spending money on accessories for it.

Shalom,
Hilda & Kathy
